House eases impeachment rules

Ombudsman presses graft raps vs Tupas Sr., 5 others

By Kristine L. Alvar

THE OFFICE of the Ombudsman yesterday affirmed the corruption charges against Senate Vice President Teodoro R. Alvarado, the father of the late senator, in a decision to dismiss a 2004 complaint for violation of anti-graft laws.

In a nine-page decision, the Ombudsman's Public Investigation Office (PIO) denied the motions for reconsideration filed by Tupas and his co-accused—the members of the Montenegro family—of the corruption charges filed against them in connection with the construction of the Iloilo airport.

TEODORO

Motion lacks merit

"Taking over the arguments of the parties and the evidence on record, the office is of the view and is held that the motion for reconsideration of Senator Teodoro R. Alvarado and the Montenegro family is not meritorious," the PIO said. "The PIO said, 'The decision was affirmed by Special Prosecutor Raulito B. Bantao.'

Tupas is the father of Sen. Raul Tupas Jr., chair of the House justice committee which is hearing the impeachment complaint against Ombudsman Francisco Torres.

Another of Tupas Jr.'s sons, he promised to negotiate and his subsequent deal with the Montenegro family was tantamount to a bribe.

The Ombudsman said the company that runs the project of the Iloilo International Airport is a Montenegro family business and that it has complete controlling interest in the Department of Environment and Natural Resources (DENR).

And when it issued the permit, Tupas Jr. knew that his daughter-in-law, Raulita Montenegro, was the wife of the project's manager, and her father was involved in Senator's project, the Ombudsman said.

Illegal crafting operations

"The PIO said that according to the best position to know that MIRE (the company) was using Senator's long industrial unit and general permit to conduct illegal crafting operations of raw materials extracted from other areas without the necessary mineral processing permit from the DENR," the decision read.

Tupas Jr. was involved with the Montenegro family business company "unlawful benefits and in undue advantage," the Ombudsman said.

Thus, despite the violation committed by the first Tupas, "the PIO said 'the father' Senator Raul Tupas Sr. is not liable."

By Cynthia D. Batara

THE HOUSE committee on justice will not be using the strict rules of evidence when it votes on whether there is probable cause to impeach Ombudsman Francisco Torres on Thursday.

"There will be a political proceeding, and a court, we are not strict on the rules of procedure, we're not asking for lawyers but as practical leaders in an impeachment," said Sen. Raul Tupas Jr., the committee chair.

Unlike in the impeachment trial in the Senate, which requires a higher degree of evidence, all that is needed is for the committee members to agree on whether there is sufficient basis on the charge of loss of public trust, said Tupas.

Tupas, who is a lawyer, made a distinction between probable cause as contained in a criminal proceeding and in an impeachment.

In criminal law, probable cause refers to the evidence that would make a reasonable person believe that a crime or wrong doing has been, is being, or will be committed, he said.

In an impeachment complaint, probable cause means the presence of sufficient facts that the accused might be removed when he or she stands trial for the offense charged, Tupas said.

Thus, he said, was the criminal definition of probable cause and was what the committee has to use.

He said that even the presentation of witnesses in the last hearing was unnecessary since the committee would have had the evidence.

Sen. George Tupas said he believed that some evidence and witnesses presented to the committee last Wednesday would not be able to stand up in court, but the committee would still consider them when they vote on the complaint.

He refused to give an example, saying he did not want to prejudge the voting.

mayor Socorro Hermoso last and former Commission on Elections (Comelec) Chair Benjamin Diok in the 1995-1997 scandal, the dismissal of first cases filed against the husband of former President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo on the 2001-2003 case, function on the death of Mayor Francis Philip Protacio, and the arrest and detention of former House speaker member Raul H. Bantao.

The second complaint consists of three main cases: the P220-million alleged bribe for land use, the "very general" alleged misappropriation of public funds, and the alleged misuse of public funds for the construction of the Iloilo airport.

Palace elated Heidi willing to rejoin gov't

By Herman Bantao

MANILA—A glad former government auditor Heidi Montenegro has shown an interest in returning to public service.

Presidential spokesperson Edwin Lantada, however, indicated the administration had yet to decide what job to offer the former Commission on Elections (COMELEC) auditor who left the public sector in 2001.

"We're glad to know that Heidi Montenegro has shown an interest in joining the government and that's what we're looking for," Lantada said.

Another chance

After repeatedly saying that she was done with working in government following her appointment as a COMELEC auditor, Montenegro said that she was willing to give government service another chance.

She said she was even willing to work in the COMELEC, "if that's really what the President and the people want," she said.

New AFP chief picked

By Herman Bantao

President Arroyo has already chosen the new chief of the Armed Forces of the Philippines (AFP) to succeed Gen. Antonio Tullano.

Lantada said he was not sure if the AFP chief would be making the appointment on Tuesday or on Wednesday.

20 PH sailors coming home

By Jerry E. Doyle

THE PHILIPPINE Navy is making arrangements for the repatriation of 20 Filipino sailors who were released after nearly five months of captivity by Somali pirates in the Gulf of Aden, according to the Department of Foreign Affairs (DFA).

The sailors are crew members of the commercial cargo vessel M/V Lito, which is owned by the Singapore shiping firm NKK-Finland Limited.

The sailors, released on Feb. 20 by the pirates, "will be repatriated from Nairobi (the Kenyan capital) to Manila," said Foreign Secretary J. Sison in a statement, via DFA spokesman.

He added, "Further and to the south the doctrine of the fruit of a poisonous tree, a seizure of prohibited articles in a house conducted during a search with out a valid search warrant makes them illegally obtained, and, therefore, inadmissible in any judicial proceedings."

Simultaneous raids

Justice Secretary Leticia de la Cruz had assigned Garcha to handle the preliminary investigation of the case that occurred from the simultaneous raids conducted by the SOA in Quezon City and the cities of Manila, Baguio and Marikina on Dec. 27, 2010.

The raids were based on a request issued by Chinese Embassy officials who claimed that their counterparts were conducting hundreds of millions of US dollars from mainland through the Internet and other electronic cash transfers.

Some arrested in Manila were Taiwanese Lin Jie, Lin Chih-Ching, Wang Chao-Hsing, Fan Ming-Pei, Lin Guo-Tsun, Chen Ching-Ching, Chao Shun, Gong Shing-Hui, Chen Hsiung and Chen Chia-Hsi.

Those arrested in Marikina were Taiwanese Chen Jui-wei, Li Yung-sheng, Lin Yung-sheng, Li Xiang-shan and Lin Hsiung-sheng and Chinese Wang Xiang, Li Guo-Ping, Feng De-hong, Peng Jia-jing, Liang Ping, Long Xian-Ping, Peng Ming-shan, Wang Xian and Lin Yuh-shan.

ATNJ confiscated telecommunications tools, laptops, printers, cellular phones, telephones and computer infra, routers, adapters, cables and a wireless transmitter, were confiscated during the raids.

On Jan. 4, the foreigners were provisionally held for study and reporting in Baguio, Marikina and Marikina in violation of Republic Act No. 8489, or the Access Denial Regulation Act of 1996.

FVR: This is a private trip

FORMER PRESIDENT Rainsa arrived in Taiwan yesterday afternoon for a four-day trip principally in the cities of Taipei and Taichung.

He is leading a 15-member Philippine delegation in a series of business roundtables and networking events with leading Taiwanese companies and business groups under the auspices of the Taiwan Chamber of South Philippines.

Rainsa said he would take top economic and cultural aspects with Taiwan business groups, including developments on the Cross-Taiwan Strait Economic Zone, a key component of the Masterplan of China's regional economy.

He said his trip bearing an economic agenda was still under the one-China policy.

"The policy is clear here in Manila and the Department of Foreign Affairs, while we talk about economic, education, culture, culture and tourism, but we also talk about economic, education, culture and tourism," he said.

In Taiwan, the government-run Central News Agency (CNA) reported that Chen would be met by outgoing Taiwan President Ma Ying-jeou.

CNA said Rainsa would meet with Taiwanese Vice President Vincent Sui in Taipei, but it remained "unclear" if the two would discuss the deposition row between Taiwan and the Philippines.

Taiwan, this made it clear he was not an official envoy to Taipei. He said the US "reminded the original idea" when it did not recognize the temporary recognizing order (TPO) issued by the Council of Affairs on the deposition of the Taiwanese.

"It was the inauguration officials of the Philippines who said they made the mistake ... They were responsible for making the mistake of course, but they were not responsible as public officials for not recognizing the TPO," he said. "The Taiwanese said the matter would be resolved," he said.

Rainsa said he represents the Philippines should have respected the rule of law, but stopped short of saying the government should apologize.

He said Chen must meet for the Philippines and Taiwan to take a "hard line" on the matter.

Cluster of brothers

"We are a cluster of brothers and neighbors," he said, at the joint breakfast for the public. "We can only hope you want others to do better."

Rainsa said the Philippines did not need to take a new China policy because it had economic and cultural ties with Taiwan.

"I am not a special envoy or an official envoy," he said, as President Aquino ... I never go to other countries and I never offered myself," he said, when asked if he would discuss the matter in Taiwan.

Like most countries, the Philippines will negotiate with Taiwan, he said.

China considers Taiwan a renegade province. With a report from America being its role and the SOA and the Chinese Embassy did not submit additional evidence to justify the case "despite the opportunity given" them.

"The facts remain," stated Rainsa, "but we are not in a position to defend the case. The facts remain the same. The facts remain the same. The facts remain the same."

"This, before to show any proof that these items were used in committing prohibited acts, we must have more evidence to establish probable cause against the respondents, since the mere possession of these items is not prohibited by the law," he said.

In his review of the documents, Comair noted that the worst ac-used in the Manila raid found the items to be searched as "valuable items, but not as 'hard' items," he said.

Ching Shing cases, he said the substance of the warrant issued Section 3, article 13 of the Constitution which prohibits unreasonable searches.

General said "the failure to search the particular place to be searched violates the legality of the search law being applied in this case."

"[We] were assuming that the search warrant ... was valid, the mere possession of the items seized by the SOA ... is not a violation of the law," he said.

'Original sin'

Former President Fidel V. Rainsa stated the Bureau of Immigration (BI) for the diplomatic staff with Taiwan over the deposition of the Taiwanese to the Chinese Embassy.

Rainsa said he was looking for Understanding the Role of Stock Inventories in Oil Pricing

In today's environment of increasing prices of crude and petroleum products, a common question being raised is 'why local selling prices reflect current high prices when oil companies have inventories bought some time ago when prices were lower? Shouldn't they first exhaust their old stocks following first-in, first-out accounting and not have windfall gains at the expense of the public?'

This question appears logical and reasonable at first glance. But it is worth understanding why countries where markets are open, like Singapore, Hongkong, Australia, United States, United Kingdom, France, among others, similarly reflect international oil prices immediately, some on a daily basis like the US and Thailand, and others on a weekly basis like Hongkong and Singapore. The main reason for this is to ensure pricing transparency, such that what the public sees in the international market, whether prices are going up or down, are immediately reflected in the local market.

To explain further, refiners and finished product importers have different inventory levels, with refiners having about 40-60 days of stocks, while product importers normally maintain about 7-14 days of stocks.

As has been observed in the market, when prices are increasing, which is what is happening now, even if refiners hold a longer term inventory of say, 45 days, if they continue to sell at lower prices till they use up their inventory, this may be seen to be undermining competition.

Conversely, when prices are dropping, product importers will immediately reflect the current lower prices, which refiners are forced to match in order to remain competitive. For how will they make the public accept a delayed price reduction, just because they have stocks bought at high prices? How will the public know what inventory levels and days they should wait before prices are reduced? Will the oil companies not be accused of delaying price reduction to make more money?

For the above reasons, reflecting current international oil prices is the most transparent way of pricing and therefore, the norm in open markets.

Currently, the utmost urgency is in ensuring supply security and mitigating the impact of the price increases to the public, especially the disadvantaged sectors.

In support of the Government, we in Pilipinas Shell Petroleum Corporation (PSPC), have increased our crude and product inventories at maximum levels of at least 60 days, to ensure continuity of supply to meet our customers' requirements, notwithstanding the associated higher costs of doing so.

Further, to mitigate the impact of higher oil prices on the public, we are maintaining close to 150 Shell Pepeng Pasada Club Loyalty and DOE lanes that offer discounts to public utility vehicles. We likewise remain in support of the Government's advocacy on energy efficiency and conservation.

This is a time to engage and help calm the public, and to plan for contingencies. We continue in our aims of working together towards helping the Philippines address the ever-increasing challenges of our changing world.

Comelec scored for insisting on ARMM polls

BARRO ISULA A civil society group has criticized the Commission on Elections (Comelec) for insisting on holding the biggest election in the Philippines' history in Manila this year. MANILA

The Reform Alliance (New Party) said the Liberals should actually agree to the proposal to move the elections to 2013.

Butler, Canada's first Prime Minister, also has been quoted as saying the elections would "put the Right and P.L.C. [Liberal] side

John B. Baker, KITT chairman, said using computers would never capture a "small-time crook" in the nation.

The previous years, we had elections using these machines but it did not solve the problems of massive fraud and cheating in the system," Kaine told assemblymen here on Wednesday.

Running costs all time

Tom Wilson, another co-owner of RAR, said with only a few months to go, the Congress is becoming fed of laws and one never knows what the elections in the ARAB will be "Yes, and yes from Israel."

"We are considering why the Congress might be considering the abolition of August," he said.

Wilson said his group was all so-so under the radar. The Canadian finished 37.2 billion for the elections.

He said the poll body should instead agree to postpone the election and use the break to discuss the region's water line.

He said sometimes the election in 2013 is the only source that provides information on the down in MSMA.

For Iraqis, however, the new constitution would provide the government with the power to sign the peace agreement it signed with the U.S. National Liberation Front in Rome.

"With the single item, we hope that we can subsequently come up with the full implementation of the provisions of the agreement," said the governor.

The government, he said, can do very much for the government that could be used for positive shock advertising.

New World rebrands, burnishes its image

Major renovation of Makati hotel starts this year

By Margie C. Enriquez
Guest Writer

FARID ALAIN Dubois, New World Makati's general manager, wears the conventional dark suit. But there's a difference—a tiny silver emblem is pinned on his lapel.

That's his way of announcing the company's rebranding.

The New World Hotel Hospitality is repositioning its focus to target the new breed of travelers with a new logo, corporate colors and a focused corporate culture. This is in line with the Hong Kong-based group's expansion plans such as building more hotels in the next five years.

Meanwhile, New World Makati will undergo a small-scale renovation starting with the refurbishment of the guest rooms to the Executive Club floor, the executive lounge, ballroom, boardroom, the lobby, main driveway and the outdoor lounge.

"In the past, the image of New World was outdated. When it opened, it was New World then it was managed under the its previous brand. Then New World came and took over. In the old New World, the culture or the way of doing things was different. It didn't stand out from the rest," he says.

Board chairman Felix Ong, executive vice chair of New World Hospitality and grandfather of tycoon V.C. Ong, chair of New World Group, aims to set the company as a major player in the hotel industry.

From Ninoy to Noynoy: 25 Years of the Philippine Daily Inquirer

From Ninoy to Noynoy: 25 years of the Philippine Daily Inquirer staff to the last 25 years of Philippine history through the pages, photos, columns and words chronicled in the last quarter century's newspaper of record.

From the tragic to the comic, and the many shades in-between, the INQUIRER 25th anniversary offering highlights the resilience and tenacity of Filipinos through the writing days of the Manila Chronicle, the lively days of Isang Mga Pambata, the satirical and colorful drawings of the early PHOTO to the current-day People Power at the turn of the century. It includes the beginning, the sun of the wings whose cultural roots it started to flourish becomes embodied in the present.

Alongside the history of the "Inquirer project," the book is also the story of the INQUIRER growth in these years, from a paper founded by a pioneer entrepreneur to a group of over a dozen publications with a personal touch, broadcast, and print models.

Books are available at the Inquirer Corporate Affairs Office, Inquirer Bldg., Upper corner Marikina Rd., 1054, Orlina Bldg. Annex, Marikina City. Free delivery for a minimum order of 10 books. To order, please call Nancy Tullia at 919-1000 ext. 702 or 919-4436. E-mail: btulias@inquirer.com.ph

Fashion world in shock as Dior fires Galliano

From enfant terrible to terrible of a different sort—who can replace him in one of fashion's most coveted posts?

By Charles Ford

IT WAS the storm that broke the creature-child model's back.

The shock of Dior has reverberated on Tuesday. It's being revealed that John Galliano, shortly after a video of the British designer walking with models down the catwalk, was fired from his post as creative director of the French fashion house.

The 40-year-old Galliano, 5'10", was born in Manchester, England, and moved to Paris in 1995. He was a member of the band "The Libertines" and was involved in a legal and publicized affair with French law. His ex-girlfriend claimed he called her "Gypsy Bitch" and "Gypsy Bitch".

The fashion house had said it was suspending Galliano pending a police investigation.

But after the release on Monday of an audio video showing an intoxicated Galliano saying things like "I love Hitler," Dior quickly released a statement that said it had issued legal proceedings to dismiss him, a move that could take weeks to months. It is believed the video was taken on a separate incident.

The video shows Galliano telling the people seated next to him, "People like you should be dead," and makes references about people being "gay".

"We unreservedly condemn the statements made by John Galliano, which are in total contradiction to the long-standing core values of Christian Dior," John Telford, Dior's chief executive, told Reuters. "We are sorry."

Fil-Am designers reveal drama behind red carpet gowns

LOS ANGELES—After the last trophy in the awards season was handed out, red carpets in Hollywood featured a high of red.

Now the focus is on the designers (and the stars) who have decorated the red carpet in Hollywood Hills, and the run shown by the stars in the darkest corners of their closets.

LA-based Filipino-American designers Oliver Sabido and Calvin Kaprielian, who schooled, tailored and designed, and very close friends of the stars, said their work with making outfits for the stars of awards shows, from the Golden will wear Offroad. It only ran on up for public installation if the public is not even. Otherwise, the reasons that a given nation were have nothing to do with fashion.¹⁷

He continued: "On the other hand, it would be easy for a designer to think he's allowed to be doing whatever he wants in order to maximize all the press coverage potential. If the woman ends up not wearing his gown and so not on the list, but, the designer still gets press credit. We don't think anyone would do that, but there's a temptation to that."

Oliver Jones (@oliverjonesuk) tweeted the following: "I've been thinking about the wedding. Last minute, I've come that was into the making of the Golden Globe party of Oliver's Audrey Hepburn. Her husband came to my Mum and Douglas about two days before the Golden Globe because they still had not found the right dress," he recounted. "Herby had lots of gowns, but no dress that was just right. So, I saw Douglas in a pink dress but she didn't feel like she had the right one yet. The artist loved my clothes and sent photos to Ianthe via his cell phone. She said she liked everything he sent. They asked me to make a gown for her and said I had Audrey approve the fabric. I designed the gown and we made it in 24 hours. She tried it on for 78."

Final Review

Oliver continued, "Because of the little time remaining, I went with the artist to Amber's house on the morning of the October 16th to the Road Milling. Twenty-four hours after I designed the gown, Amber was wearing it in the red carpet. As they say, the more whimsy, I was the first time that Amber ever made it to the best dressed list, included that of Newsweek."

He stressed, "There's no guarantee that your poem will be chosen and you are a personality way out of the time in your poem. Anything can happen on the day of the event—a spouse will

Anything can happen on the day of the event—the spouse walks in, looks at the dress and makes a face. You can be sure she won't be wearing that dress!

She looks at the driver and he smiles at her. She won't be wearing that dress." Oliver brought up an interesting giver. "Believe it or not, a woman may be blessed on the day of the event and she can no longer fit in what is usually a very tight gown," he said. "The Morning is a real surprise. A dress I made Contrastable abuse, it. Or her child may run up to her and his sticky great feet and jelly fingers leave marks on the grass. Or the spots collect on a ribbon the time. That's the end of the road."

Any one of these factors could explain why a voter switches gears at the last minute. But, Oliver said, "I may accept that a personality-based decision is the dominant factor and picked someone else," even if that was the case.

"The client never tells us they believe in celebrity say before an event that she's wearing the designer or that she's considering certain designers before an event," he said. "They understand it's not fair to the designers and, of course, they also want the option to change their mind at the last minute."

Growing two-PS-Aggs

Oliver disclosed how he came to know up-and-coming Filipino-Americans at the time—Matthew "Matty" Lee.

Kege, who was a love-matching ally sometime in "Black Snow" and Wigg Business, is producer of director Jake Mathews's love live album about women, "God of Love."

"Digs and Mary were introduced to me a week before."

O'Leary said, "In the real world, I had plenty of time and I wasn't too broke," he quipped with a smile, way before he obviously little knew he was on the right track.

...and I had things with both of them. I did some building together to Gigi's gown for day before. Gigi came from New York and, simultaneously, was staying at the SLS hotel on Beverly Hills, which is a five-minute drive to my house. We stopped by his house the night before at the hotel on the way home from the beach.

FITZGERALD AND McHUGH—Over a combined career spanning eight Madison Avenue jingles, they are the music's best designer. Other: Schubert made for him.

"On the day of the Oscars, I got someone (Rud Husever) to do Gaby's hair and makeup. I offered to stop by his house to pick her up in the limo since her husband had to fly back to New York that morning. I like being a part of someone's special day. I've always enjoyed their dress fittings, too."

Many on other hand, was very alone who he was wearing even late for a day wearing when he graciously returned up and for an interview about just winning the true cinematography prize at the Independent from Australia. The president's caution that he was wearing the box especially made by Oliver for him, that he looked that yes, he might wear something with a touch of the Philippines (and of the Philippines in his).
